

THE SNIPER

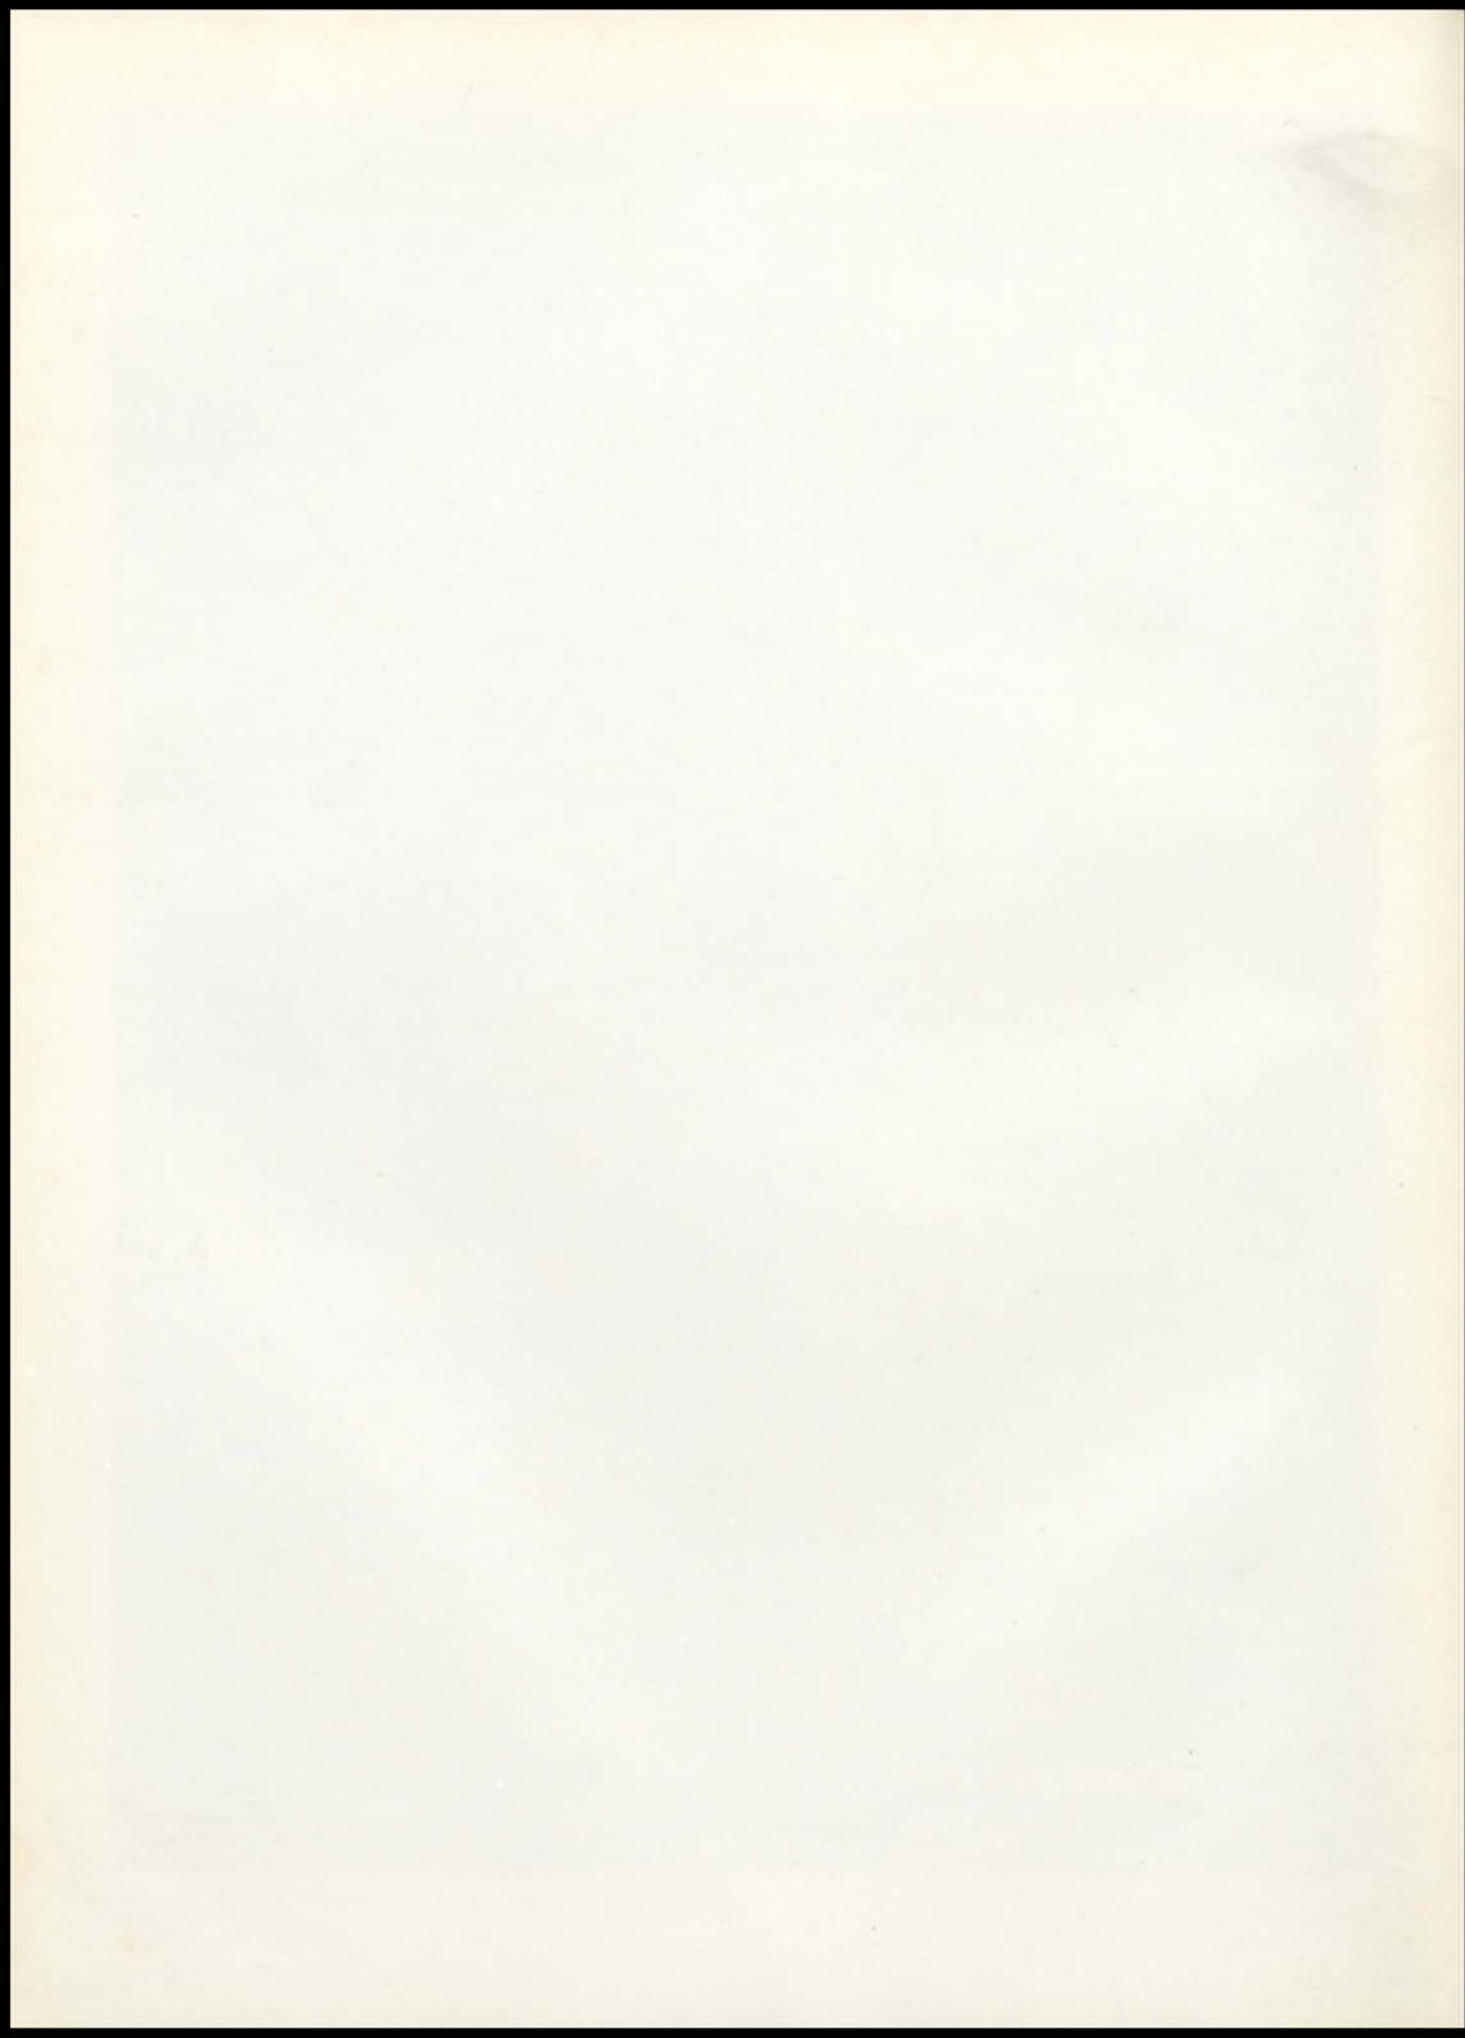

1965

VOLUME XXXV

AROUND THE CAMPUS '65

The direction in which education starts a man will determine his future life.

Plato, The Republic.

Education is a wide and vast experience. It is the goal of Millersburg Military Institute that the student go beyond academic training in order to fulfill the school's hopes for him. Only by learning to work and care about his work and to respect the care and work of others can the cadet hope to possess an open and informed mind. The military and religious training which are a part of the way of life at this school provide the cadet with an opportunity to learn to discipline himself. Each boy must think about the meaning and importance of the word honor, and its place in his life. Millersburg Institute hopes that the result of a cadet's years here will be knowledge of himself, his world, and his place in the world. The direction in which education starts a man will determine his future life.

A detailed black and white photograph of an ancient Egyptian wall relief. The scene is divided into two horizontal registers. The upper register shows a group of figures, including a large central figure and several smaller ones, some holding staffs or scepters. The lower register depicts a group of soldiers or warriors, each holding a long spear or staff. The figures are carved in a traditional Egyptian style, with clear outlines and a sense of movement. The text "ACADEMIC DEPARTMENTS" is superimposed over the lower portion of the image.

COL. W. D. HAYNES
PRESIDENT

MILLERSBURG, KENTUCKY

Captain Steve Moore
President, Senior Class of 1965
Millersburg Military Institute

Dear Captain Moore:

It has been a privilege and a pleasure to work with the fine class of 1965. Now as your graduation is only a few days away, I approach it with mixed emotions: the greatest of happiness and appreciation for your successes and contributions to Millersburg Military Institute; and also with feelings of personal loss as our associations will soon come to an end.

Your class is the largest in the history of the school and, insofar as I can ascertain, has the highest percentage entering college.

Your leadership contributed to what is possibly the most excellent showing ever made on Federal Inspection.

You have participated in athletic successes which point the way to pre-eminence in this all-important aspect of school life.

You have established new and desirable traditions while eliminating those considered undesirable.

You have established precedents in teamwork and leadership which should have an effect on the excellence of this school throughout its history.

I congratulate you and ask for God's blessings on all throughout your life.

Very truly yours,

W. D. Haynes
